YOUR PROFESSIONAL PATH PROFILE

Congratulations and Thank you!

Thanks for making the time to take the Professional Path Profile Assessment.

And Congratulations!

Because with this information you are on your way to creating the impact and lifestyle you desire - and deserve - to have.

Hi - my name is Sarah Pratt, and I founded The Ramen Phase and created this assessment to help passionate people like you discover your purpose in life and find fulfillment by creating the impact and lifestyle you most desire to have.

So let's get to your results!

Your Professional Path Profile:

EDAMAME

Based on the information you've shared and the little I know about you and your situation, the Professional Path Profile that best describes you is:

EDAMAME

Here's What That Means...

Edamames are the wanderers, enjoying both time with their loved ones and the ability to pack up their pod and head off to an unexplored corner of the world. This professional path profile often desires to be mobile and feels stuck when they are tied down to one location or a strict work schedule.

An Edamame may have an insatiable curiosity for new experiences and locations, thriving on novelty and interaction for their continued growth, or they may prefer a simpler and quiet life without a boss dictating how they spend their time. Either way, Edamames blossom when they get to decide how they live, and they require freedom to make their own plans for their overall life satisfaction.

Common Edamame Challenges

But because of this, Edamames can have a difficult time finding fulfillment in many typical employment positions. While so many jobs require working long hours at a desk or being present at a physical office everyday, an Edamame is unable to spend their time exploring, socializing, or relaxing as they would prefer.

Pursuing the lifestyle that Edamames find so fulfilling, however, is quite financially demanding and also requires a profession which will allow flexible schedules and work environments.

Basically what that means is that while an Edamame may not be entirely focused on getting rich, the reality is that their free-spirited lifestyle necessitates consistent and flexible income in order to fund their excursions - or even just to pay the usual bills.

Without a profession that includes a completely self-managed schedule, an Edamame will not be able to take the time to go where they want to go, relax when they want to relax, and do the things they find most rewarding.

And a traditional job offers only those few precious weeks or even just days of vacation time - making it all the more difficult to travel, visit family and friends, or even start a family of their own if they so choose.

So while an Edamame's motivation may not be about making tons of money, the truth is that money is a crucial part of funding the lifestyle you desire to achieve.

Here's What You Can Do About It

But I don't want to discourage you from considering these things as options just because funding can be difficult, and you see, right now I'm actually setting up stable, reliable, flexible sources of income for myself online so that I can use my time and funds in order to pursue my own life's purpose, which, in my case, is to establish and build a nonprofit to rescue cats...

Because I love cats!

And that may not be your life purpose, that's probably not everybody's life purpose, but whatever yours is, I created The Ramen Phase to help teach you how to do these things yourself, so that you can use your time and your funds however you choose to find fulfillment in life and create that impact and lifestyle that you most desire.

Your Next Steps

The way I see it, if people are becoming millionaires every day online, wouldn't it be amazing if us wanderers of the world learned their strategies and then implemented them, using the money generated to support our desire for freedom and flexibility? This shift in thinking is what tore down the walls in my own mind on what was possible, and paved the way for me to truly get serious about creating the lifestyle I most desire to have while also doing something I feel passionate about.

Now, I know you are likely busy with various projects and plans, but I encourage you to take just the next few minutes and give yourself permission to learn more. After all, by working smarter, not harder we can all find a way to free ourselves of the confines of traditional employment and spend our time doing what we love.

The main Ramen Phase site has a growing list of resources on many different business models that you can explore if you're interested in learning more about this whole concept, as well as many of the essentials you'll need to get started, like purchasing a domain and all that.

But I don't want to overwhelm you with all that right now because this might still be a fairly new idea for you. So instead of going straight there I made a much shorter page of resources selected especially for Edamames, and that'd be a great place to start.

Your Next Steps

Now, remember that I only know a little about you based on your answers to the assessment you just took, but that's what I'm going off of so of course you are the one who is going to decide what's right for you and what isn't, I'll just share my best recommendations. That's also why I curate these resources across various business models, income opportunities, personal strengths, and all that, because I understand that this isn't a one-size-fits-all kind of thing.

The first thing you'll find on the next page is a section of income-generating ideas and business models tailored to your professional path profile. I've selected these ones specifically because they are effective, scalable, working right now, and largely able to be automated.

Of course nothing that I recommend is a get rich quick scheme because, can we agree that success doesn't happen overnight? It doesn't, it takes time and effort, but it's absolutely worth it in the end.

Honestly when I was stuck in a job I did not enjoy, that took a lot of effort too and all my time. Building something for yourself, your chosen path, and your future is a far better investment of your time and energy.

Your Next Steps

Below that you'll see a recommended course you can take online if you're interested in learning the step-by-step ways to set them up. And I recommend this course for many reasons, but for one - this is actually the course that I started with, and that I'm using to set up and grow my streams of income online.

They also have a huge community online and probably the best thing about it is that it actually includes 3 courses in one - it covers all three of those income options I mentioned in the section above, so if you end up checking out the course and want to try out one option, but then pivot and do a different one, you already have the whole course for that too! Or you could even try out all three if you'd like!

The intro video for that course goes into more detail about these three income options, and while I know you may not be drawn to the flashy millionaire lifestyle, keep in mind the opportunities this could open up for you and your desire to live life on your own terms.

So I just wanted to mention that because it is a really great program for getting started, but there are other resources on that page that you can look over too - I also added a short list of book recommendations, because I believe reading and lifelong learning are so crucial to our personal and professional growth. There's a link to our complete book list on there as well if you're wanting to check that out.

Your Next Steps

And finally, I know there are a few different ways you can end up at our assessment, so in case you're unfamiliar with our approach I wanted to review our 4 steps to fulfillment - dream, discover, delve, and dare.

Dream is what you were already doing before you found yourself here - you have a desire for change, or a curiosity of what else is out there, or maybe a clear passion and purpose that you would love to pursue.

Discover is what you just did - you took a few moments to fill out our assessment in order to take that first big step toward finding a path to fulfill that dream.

Delve is what's next - delve into the resources on the next page and learn about the options and opportunities that are out there. We've curated this list and the site in general to provide you with the resources we believe can best help you move closer to that dream.

And finally...

Dare - dare to be bold, go after that dream, and build the life, the impact, and the future you've always desired. It's going to take work, and some time, and plenty of effort, but in the end, isn't it worth it?

Most importantly though, you don't have to do it alone.

We're also building a community of people who are all on this same journey. If you're interested in finding support and comradery along this path, check out our community resources, like our MISO Facebook group, our MISO+ Patreon, and follow us on your favorite social platforms for more motivation and ideas.

That's about it for now! Keep in mind that I'm always trying to find new things to help you out, so check back for updates and new resources!

I wish you success and peace in your endeavors, and look forward to being on this path of change with you.

I'll see you out there!

Sarah
